

Player of the Week – November 22nd – December 7th

As the league approaches the Christmas break almost nothing remains consistent. Boston Pizza has lost 3 of its last 5, Up Here put up 96 points per game over a three game stretch, and Ronnie sat out all but 2 minutes of a recent JSL game. Only Medic North getting W's remains constant. That and the scoring from our POTW...

3rd Runner Up: Josh Campbell, Boston Pizza Bulldogs. The unexpected return of this YBA legend brought along with him raised expectations for the Bulldogs. Josh has done his part, averaging 18.4 ppg since his mid-November return. Unfortunately the team hasn't helped him out much going just 2-3 over that stretch (this being the reason he's not higher on the list).

2nd Runner Up: Ken, JSL. Another mid-season addition that has been filling up the scoresheet since his arrival. Ken has scored in double digits every game and is currently in second in scoring in the league at 19.8 ppg. Ken's impact isn't solely at the offensive end of the court either, his quick feet and quicker hands have propelled him into the top 5 in steals and when Skylar returns from injury these two will be the catalysts in JSL's fast break offense.

1st Runner Up: Cole Marshall, Medic North Mavs. In his last six games, Trash Talk's number 1 target has averaged 21.5 ppg and has put up 36, 29, 24 and 24 point performances. Always the target of haters on Trash Talk, Cole has let his rainbow treys do the talking for him on the court this season. With CT missing the majority of games as of late, Cole has picked up the slack and is a big reason why Medic North has only one loss on the season.

Winner: Nick Diem, Up Here 76ers. Up Here has won 3 of their last 5 (with their only losses coming to the Mavs) and Nick is the main reason why. Since mid-March he is averaging over 30 ppg and his 41 in a 1-point loss to Medic North on November 23rd is the high in the league this year. With Diem in the line-up, you never know when a 40 point game is going to happen and the 76ers are in every game they play. He currently has a 7 ppg lead in the scoring race and looks to continue his dominance in the second half of the season.

